SURVIVING THE '70's is a survival manual for this decade by one of America's top social critics, Benjamin DeMott. Published in hardcover by E.P. Dutton & Co., SURVIVING THE '70's will be published by Penguin Books Inc. March 23. DeMott has written a sane guide to the opportunities that lie beyond today's tangle of pop ideas about hip life styles. The liberated woman, college students, campus revolt, the family, the ecology movement,

On In and Out of Women's Lib: . . . there's a loony fringe here as elsewhere on the Mod Scene—and there's also a notion

Dear Readers,

This is the page I've picked to apologize for several things

First, since this is the who's who section, I must apologize for the omission of several people. Mrs Porter, Mrs. Rutledge and Mrs. Friedriech were all listed in who's who but their pictures were all on a roll of film that was lost or destroyed while being processed by an outside firm.

Other apologies must be offered to other people who will be understandably disappointed in their representations in this book.

My only excuse was a temporary cynical pessimism,

You may hold me personally and entirely responsible for a yearbook that was at best poorly executed.

Very truly yours,

FACULTY EXPOSED!

On the tenth of February, 1972, letters were sent from the SUMMIT Faculty Editor to all faculty members urging them to set up appointments with the SUMMIT photographer.

Most of these letters were ignored.

On the following pages are photos of both the departments which responded and those which did not.

It should be easy to tell the difference.
